Introductory course on applied mathematics methods with emphasis on modeling of biological problems in terms of differential equations and stochastic dynamical systems. Students will be working in groups on several projects and will present them in class at the end of the course.

SYLLABUS:

BOOKS:

