Open Your Heart
Religion and Cultural Poetics of Greater Mexico
David P. Sandell

“Open Your Heart is a major contribution to those of us working in the areas of ritual and religion, narrative, and individual life experiences. David Sandell is an anthropologist, and this is a beautiful, close ethnographic study of a group of people in the United States who are often badly misunderstood.”
—Beverly J. Stoeltje, Indiana University

Immigration and the Border
Politics and Policy in the New Latino Century
Edited by David L. Leal and José E. Limón

“Other than its interdisciplinary approach, the collection’s helpfulness results from its inclusion of youth (a sector of the Latino population that is exploding but often not understood or studied), the fact that in several essays the researchers point to policies that are more productive, and an approach that does not ignore those left behind in the sending countries.”
—Theological Studies

Race, Ethnicity, and Nationality in Hispanic American and Latino/a Thought
Edited by Jorge J. E. Gracia

“Readers familiar with Latin American history will find this a valuable collection. It is an effective overview of how pre-eminent thinkers comprehended Hispanic America’s great diversity. It ably frames their elite versions of solidarity—and the intellectual efforts they undertook to surmount the barriers these faced—within and beyond national frontiers.”

Beyond the Barrio
Latinos in the 2004 Elections
Edited by Rodolfo O. de la Garza, Louis DeSipio, and David L. Leal
“This volume makes an indispensable contribution toward understanding the continuing political development of U. S. Latino communities by assessing their roles in the 2004 U. S. elections. This book should not be missed by anyone interested in tracking the complex realities of the roles played by the nation’s largest ethno-racial minority group in the first national elections since officially gaining that status following the 2000 decennial U. S. Census.” —Ronald Schmidt, Sr., California State University, Long Beach

The Xaripu Community across Borders
Labor Migration, Community, and Family
Manuel Barajas
Awarded Honorable Mention, 2011 Distinguished Book Award Committee, American Sociological Association Sociology of Latino/a Section
“. . . a major contribution of the book, besides the analysis of Xaripu migration to the United States, is that it offers ethnographic materials that help differentiate indigenous from mestizo migration. It is a useful book for advanced undergraduate and graduate studies in migration.” —Social Forces

Transformations of La Familia on the U.S.-Mexico Border
Edited by Raquel R. Márquez and Harriett D. Romo
“Transformations of La Familia on the U.S.-Mexico Border illustrates how the border is a meaningful phenomenon in the changing structure and dynamics of fronteriza families, and in particular for women. Written by fronteriza researchers who both grew up along the border and now focus their work there, this multidisciplinary collection provides a unique and complex view of how the peculiar politics of the border affects families and individuals within families.” —Latino Studies

Cuban Catholics in the United States, 1960–1980
Exile and Integration
Gerald E. Poyo

“Poyo’s book is enlightening, and written with style, masterful research, and a keen sense of interpretation. In nine chapters and an epilogue, each a comprehensive unit, and each necessary to understand the full text, Poyo develops a magnificent narrative of the presence of the Catholic Church in Cuba since the early nineteenth century.” —American Historical Review

Latinos in the United States
The Sacred and the Political, Second Edition
David T. Abalos

“Readers should see this historically situated text as personal ruminations and exhortations from an academic elder and mentor of East Coast Latino/a students—an impassioned plea to his young charges at that time not to forsake their unique identity, culture, religion, and spirituality for the seductive lure of capitalist materialism. Hopefully, today’s young Latino/a college students will resonate with this still worthwhile message of self-empowerment and transformation.” —Choice

Furious Dusk
David Campos

“This is a fearless poetics—no heroes, no myth-making, no jazzy lingo games. David Campos is intent on one inner phrase: ‘I will become the fire.’ I applaud David’s first book. It is relentless in wrestling the darkness, reminiscent in some ways of Delmore Schwartz, Joan Larkin, and Victor Martinez. A tour de force, a rare heart of raw light.” —Juan Felipe Herrera, California Poet Laureate

A Tongue in the Mouth of the Dying
Laurie Ann Guerrero
“Guerrero’s poems locate the life-giving power of verbal expression in the mouths of disenfranchised speakers. . . . Centered as it is around hard-working women, Guerrero’s collection resists definition by class and color, even sex. For when she writes of womanhood, the variables of motherhood and marital status force us to see her speakers in their most vulnerable light. Yet these verses of germination and carrying, of labor and production, deliver us to a place of potent ferocity.” —Booklist

Tropicalía
Emma Trelles
“Trelles brings Tropicalia back to poetry not with the use of typography but with vivid concrete imagery. . . . [T]he poems display a lush and sonorous language; music is not so much evoked as created.” —World Literature Today

My Kill Adore Him
Paul Martínez Pompa
“There is so much more going on in this book. . . . My Kill Adore Him is an exciting and tough collection of very well-composed and accessible poems. It’s been a while since I tore through a book of poetry and really enjoyed the read.” —Harriet: A blog from the Poetry Foundation
13. ISBN 978-0-268-03518-1 • 88 pages • $16.00 pa/SALE $9.00

The Outer Bands
Gabriel Gomez
“The title poem of this collection is a 28-day record of days between Katrina and Rita, which draws from the news headlines, the language tossed around by politicians, and realistic images of the storm to provide a portrait of just how dislocating, how jarring, how out of time that period was.” —The Times-Picayune

Pity the Drowned Horses
Sheryl Luna
“In her opening poem, Luna declares that ‘pain is living and living is pain,’ but while she relentlessly probes the hardscrabble lives of many of America’s Latinos, these poems aren’t grim reading. They’re transfigured by this debut author’s extraordinary lyric power.” —Library Journal

A Promised Land, A Perilous Journey
Theological Perspectives on Migration
Edited by Daniel G. Groody and Gioacchino Campese

“The editors of this volume have gathered together many leading figures within Christian theological circles to reflect on an urgent issue in our world—migration. The articles range from those that are quite academically technical to those that are more generally accessible. There are several outstanding articles that should not be missed.” — Multicultural Review

Jalos, USA
Transnational Community and Identity
Alfredo Mirandé

“Weaving together historical material and ethnographic family accounts, Alfredo Mirandé’s Jalos, USA examines the culture and identity of families in Turlock, California, with roots in Jalos, Mexico, and with family members who remain in or return to Mexico. These family stories capture the complexities of transnational lives on both sides of the border and highlight contested gender, class, and generational issues. Whether the family members live in Mexico or the USA, they claim a strong Jalos identity.” — Mary Romero, author of The Maid’s Daughter: Living Inside and Outside the American Dream

The Yearning Feed
Manuel Paul López

“It is enthralling and frightening to live in this book of poems: wisdom is so often derived from experience, and Manuel Paul López ladles out wisdom as if from a bottomless well. . . . Spanning forty-five pages, the poems [in “The Desert Series’] are undoubtedly López’s most profound artistic statement on the need for human-to-human relations among all the peoples on the continent of the Americas.” — World Literature Today

40th Anniversary Edition
Ernesto Galarza

Introduction by Ilan Stavans

“In 1971, at the age of sixty-six, the labour activist, educator and scholar Ernesto Galarza (1905-1984) published Barrio Boy, a memoir of the long migration of his family from a small village in the Sierra Madre to California. Barrio Boy immediately became a classic of Chicano literature, and on its fortieth anniversary has now been published in a new edition with an introduction by the critic, biographer and short-story writer Ilan Stavans.” — Times Literary Supplement
