

a live webcast featuring
Robert Bringhurst

THE SOLID FORM OF LANGUAGE

7:30 PM CST
@AIGA.ORG
04.04.08

a live webcast featuring Robert Bringhurst

THE SOLID FORM OF LANGUAGE

Writing is the solid form of language, the precipitate. Speech comes out of our mouths, our hands, our eyes in something like a liquid form and then evaporates at once. [...] Yet language can also solidify – into iridescent, sharp, symmetrical crystals, or into structures more like halitones or shale beds or mud.
Robert Bringhurst is one of North America's most highly regarded typographers and book designers, as well as one of Canada's best known poets. He has taught literature, art history and typographic history at several universities and held fellowships from numerous arts councils.

7:30 PM CST
@AIGA.ORG
04.04.08

Writing is the solid form of language, the precipitate. Speech comes out of our mouths, our hands, our eyes in something like a liquid form and then evaporates at once. [...] Yet language can also solidify – into iridescent, sharp, symmetrical crystals, or into structures more like halitones or shale beds or mud.
Robert Bringhurst is one of North America's most highly regarded typographers and book designers, as well as one of Canada's best known poets. He has taught literature, art history and typographic history at several universities and held fellowships from numerous arts councils.

a live webcast featuring
Robert Bringhurst

THE SOLID FORM OF LANGUAGE

7:30 PM CST
@AIGA.ORG
04.04.08

Writing is the solid form of language, the precipitate. Speech comes out of our mouths, our hands, our eyes in something like a liquid form and then evaporates at once. [...] Yet language can also solidify – into iridescent, sharp, symmetrical crystals, or into structures more like halitones or shale beds or mud." Robert Bringhurst is one of North America's most highly regarded typographers and book designers, as well as one of Canada's best known poets. He has taught literature, art history and typographic history at several universities and held fellowships from numerous arts councils.

a live webcast featuring Robert Bringhurst

THE SOLID FORM OF LANGUAGE

7:30 PM CST @AIGA.ORG

04.04.08