

GAEA DESCENDING

Buy and away, imperious demand,
The tractors of desire level all
Wide-eyed, disarmed, and ruminant below
A hollow blue and plastic firmament
That rains on all who practice and who learn
To mall and chain, to factor but who won't
Create a household of our marketplace.
Let progress and development parade
Until, unleavened and unbridled we're
Undone. No longer able to bind back,
Resource, we yoke the children to a plow,
And sowing salt beneath our wild oats
Inter the sheltered village of our youth.

John F. Sherry

*Northwestern University
Evanston, IL 60208*