Notre Dame Law in D.C.
Application Process

Interested students should first talk with Dean Janet Laybold to discuss their specific interests and to identify potential field placement sites. Students may then apply to those field placements and interview for externship positions just as they would do for a summer job. The sooner a student begins the process, the better the chance of finding a suitable placement.

The program is limited to a maximum of six (6) students. Both second and third year students are eligible to apply. Preference is generally given to third year students.

Listings
Students are encouraged to review the placement information on the program’s webpage law.nd.edu/DC and also to be proactive in identifying other potential externship sites. Students are not limited to the placement sites listed on the webpage. Students should consult with Dean Laybold before contacting a potential field placement.

Questions
Questions about ND Law in DC program are welcome. Students may contact Dean Janet Laybold at jlaybold@nd.edu or ND Externship Coordinator Cathy Kustner at ckustner@nd.edu.
