TEMPLARS AND HOSPITALLERS AS PROFESSED RELIGIOUS IN THE HOLY LAND
Jonathan Riley-Smith
“Riley-Smith’s Templars and Hospitallers, although brief, is yet one more of his significant contributions to the history of the crusades and the medieval military orders. It is a book that no one interested in these topics can afford to ignore.” —The Catholic Historical Review

CHRISTIANITY’S QUIET SUCCESS
The Eusebius Gallicanus Sermon Collection and the Power of the Church in Late Antique Gaul
Lisa Kaaren Bailey
“The Eusebius Gallicanus collection of sermons . . . has received comparatively little scholarly attention, being comprehensively overshadowed by the sermons of Caesarius of Aries. Bailey’s monograph . . . aims to show why this collection is worthy of wider consideration and how it brings important new insights to our understanding of the process of Christianisation in late antique Gaul.” —Bryn Mawr Classical Review

EUROPEAN TRANSFORMATIONS
The Long Twelfth Century
Edited by Thomas F. X. Noble and John Van Engen
“[The editors] have assembled an impressive array of distinguished medievalists to explore geographical regions and a variety of themes to expose the best current thinking about what was and what was not distinctive about the twelfth century. Their collective efforts will be much cited for the innovative and well-argued contributions in this volume.” —Paul Hyams, Cornell University

THE EUCHARIST IN PRE-NORMAN IRELAND
Neil Xavier O’Donoghue
“In this ground-breaking study, Neil Xavier O’Donoghue sheds light on a little known area of liturgical history. This work is a valuable contribution to the study of the early Medieval liturgy and should be of great help to scholars and students alike.” —John F. Baldovin, S.J., Boston College

GOTHIC SONG
Margot E. Fassler
Winner of the Otto Kinkeldey Award from the American Musicological Society and the John Nicholas Brown Prize from the Medieval Academy of America
“Margot Fassler is an original, imaginative scholar, and the first edition of Gothic Song fulfilled our need for a historical account. A paperback edition will make this picture of twelfth-century European creativity available to students and a wider general audience.” —Richard L. Crocker, University of California, Berkeley

THE EMBODIED WORD
Female Spiritualities, Contested Orthodoxies, and English Religious Cultures, 1350–1700
Nancy Bradley Warren
“Warren expands upon themes developed in her Women of God and Arms: Female Spirituality and Political Conflict, 1380–1600 (2005). . . . Key concepts are incarnational piety, epistemology, textuality, and politics. Her findings are both stimulating and provocative.” —Choice

SHAKESPEARE AND RELIGION
Edition by Ken Jackson and Arthur F. Marotti

“[A recent] ‘turn to religion’ in early modern literary studies, and the related move towards seeing Shakespeare as an author deeply engaged with religious matters, is powerfully exemplified in these pages.” — Alison E. M. Shell, University College London

CREATING CATHOLICS
Catechism and Primary Education in Early Modern France
Karen E. Carter

“[C]atherine Carter examines catechisms and visitation records from multiple dioceses to explore why, by the time of the French Revolution, French Catholics knew—and zealously embraced—‘the doctrines and behaviors of their religion.’ [C]ontributes significantly to our understanding of early modern history and offers a model for effective catechesis today.” — First Things

MENNONITE GERMAN SOLDIERS
Nation, Religion, and Family in the Prussian East, 1772–1880
Mark Jantzen

“Mennonite German Soldiers offers a fascinating, carefully researched study of Prussian Mennonites during much of the nineteenth century. The author describes with exacting detail how persistent state and societal pressures coerced Mennonites into becoming ‘good German citizens.’” — Mennonite Brethren Herald

THE RISE AND FALL OF THEOLOGICAL ENLIGHTENMENT
Jean-Martin de Prades and Ideological Polarization in Eighteenth-Century France
Jeffrey D. Burson

“Burson’s elegantly written book is to date the most definitive account of a tremendously important theological battle that occurred in Enlightenment Europe, and it evokes thought-provoking reflections on more recent events. . . . This book is a must read for historians and theologians alike.” — Theological Studies

ADORATION AND ANNIHILATION
The Convent Philosophy of Port-Royal
John J. Conley, S.J.

“[A] fascinating exploration of the writings of three seventeenth-century abbesses of Port-Royal. . . . Not only does Conley introduce readers to a little studied corpus of early modern women’s writing, but he also builds a convincing case that this corpus makes important contributions to early modern philosophy” — The Medieval Review

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE AND THE ANGLICAN CHURCH
Luke Savin Herrick Wright

“Focusing on Coleridge’s religious prose, this original, learned, and important study considers Coleridge’s conception of and investment in the interrelatedness of high church Anglicanism and Tory politics. . . . Historians will appreciate Wright’s book; literature scholars should heed it.” — Choice

ORTHODOXY AND THE ROMAN PAPACY
Ut Unum Sint and the Prospects of East-West Unity
Adam A. J. DeVille

“The book’s strengths are its contemporary focus on a topic of considerable ecumenical importance and its scholarly attention to the rich diversity of views and developments with regard to the patriarchal office vis-a-vis the papacy. DeVille’s contribution is his thoroughgoing accumulation of fact and opinion in a contemporary ecumenical context. In doing so he informs readers about the depth and breadth of efforts by so many currently dedicated to restoring East-West unity in the church.” — America

TOWARD THE ENDLESS DAY
The Life of Elisabeth Behr-Sigel
Olga Lossky
Translated by Jerry Ryan
Edited by Michael Plekon
Foreword by Olivier Clément
“Olga Lossky . . . gives us a compelling portrait of this surprising theologian. Simply as a story of a Christian living through the tumultuous 20th century, it is fascinating reading, for Westerners as much as those in the Christian East.” —Books and Culture

WASHINGTON HALL AT NOTRE DAME
Crossroads of the University, 1864–2004
Mark C. Pilkinton
“Pilkinton has written a meticulously researched, detailed history of not just a building, but also of the artistic, educational, and social events that took place within its walls. In the process he traces a compelling narrative of institutional and cultural change both on and off the Notre Dame campus from 1864 to the present day.” —Wendy Arons, Carnegie Mellon University School of Drama

DANGER ON THE DOORSTEP
Anti-Catholicism and American Print Culture in the Progressive Era
Justin Nordstrom
“Danger on the Doorstep is a valuable addition to scholarship about the relationship between print and social movements. Its emphasis on anti-Catholicism makes it especially valuable, given how big the movement was and how little scholarship there is on the subject. Readers will especially appreciate the appendix of anti-Catholic cartoons, which powerfully underscores what was at stake in this struggle over citizenship in Progressive Era America.” —The Historian

SACRED PASSION
The Art of William Schickel, Second Edition
Gregory Wolfe
Foreword by James Martin, S.J.
“A chronicle of the artistic career of Schickel (1919–2009), a 1944 graduate of Notre Dame whose Living Water sculpture graces the ND grotto. His work as a painter, sculptor, architectural and furniture designer, and stained-glass artist was informed by his devotion to God. This edition offers new chapters on the artist’s recent contributions to the built environment in several communities and his recent paintings, as well as additional color images.” —Notre Dame Magazine

CATHOLICS, SLAVEHOLDERS, AND THE DILEMMA OF AMERICAN EVANGELICALISM, 1835–1860
W. Jason Wallace
“In five crisp chapters, Wallace . . . outlines how Catholicism debated the hegemonic discourse of Protestant-based acquisitive capitalism, articulated a traditional accommodation to slavery as a product of human sin, and asserted its own historic and ongoing contribution to the discussion of social morality and the proper sources of the Christian life.” —Choice

PILGRIMS TO THE NORTHLAND
The Archdiocese of St. Paul, 1840–1962
Marvin R. O’Connell
“What is truly delightful about this text is O’Connell’s artistry with words—which he uses to breathe life and color into this history. O’Connell also deftly employs his own recollections of people, places, and events in the Archdiocese of St. Paul from the 1940s onward.” —American Catholic Studies

“PROHIBITION IS HERE TO STAY”
The Reverend Edward S. Shumaker and the Dry Crusade in America
Jason S. Lantzer
“Jason S. Lantzer’s “Prohibition is Here to Stay” offers a detailed, local-level analysis of dry Protestant politics in action through an examination of the life and reform career of Edward S. Shumaker, a Methodist minister who achieved prominence and notoriety as the superintendent of the Indiana Anti Saloon League.” —Church History

THE TRANSFORMATION OF AMERICAN CATHOLICISM
Timothy Kelly
“Timothy Kelly has . . . provided a scholarly, yet highly readable and significant account, which helps to correct the lacunae in academic works concerning the impact of Vatican II on the laity. [His] book is of great value to scholars, students of American Catholic history, and the faithful in Pittsburgh, all of whom will find much food for thought in this volume.” —Church History

A CATHOLIC BRAIN TRUST
The History of the Catholic Commission on Intellectual and Cultural Affairs, 1945–1965
Patrick J. Hayes
“Patrick Hayes has written a learned and engaging account of an organization too little known today, even among Catholics. His narrative opens up fresh perspectives on the Catholic 1950s, especially with regard to church-state relations, and helps to frame today’s debates on the role of the Catholic intellectual. An admirably solid achievement.”—Leslie Tenter, Catholic University of America

CONFESSING HISTORY
Explorations in Christian Faith and the Historian’s Vocation
Edited by John Fea, Jay Green, and Eric Miller
“The editors dedicate this excellent collection to John D. Woodbridge, a Christian scholar and teacher who has inspired us to think about our careers as historians in terms of the Christian understanding of “calling.” How that might play out is the burden of these essays, and—as befits a highly contested subject—the answers range widely. The contributors speak from a variety of denominational and confessional traditions; they differ in their politics and their affiliations among the academic tribes. But they are united by their conviction that the ‘Christian mind’ matters.”—Christianity Today

SEEING THINGS THEIR WAY
Intellectual History and the Return of Religion
Edited by Alister Chapman, John Coffey, and Brad S. Gregory
“Taken together, the essays in this volume reveal, eloquently and persuasively, the unacceptably high cost of ignoring both theology and religious experience; they will help to ensure that future intellectual historians will be unable to sidestep religion, as too many of their predecessors have done.”—The Journal of Ecclesiastical History

THE MARYKNOLL CATHOLIC MISSION IN PERU, 1943–1989
Transnational Faith and Transformation
Susan Fitzpatrick-Behrens
“This is a careful study of the transformation of human lives through the quest for social justice, where Catholic missionaries’ lives and theology are changed by the very people they serve. Beautifully written and highly accessible, Fitzpatrick-Behrens’s work should be read by anyone with an interest in liberation theology, Peruvian history, or the intersections of religion and culture.”—Virginia Garrard-Burnett, University of Texas at Austin

CHRISTIAN TEXTS FOR AZTECS
Art and Liturgy in Colonial Mexico
Jaime Lara
“In enthralling detail, Lara makes it clear that the indigenous Christian culture that emerged from this interaction was neither a covert survival of pre-Hispanic paganism nor a pessimistic surrender to conquest. Rather, it was a marvelously spontaneous outpouring, fed by the imagination of a group of remarkable mendicant friars who, Lara tells us, ‘dared to use the metaphors, symbols, and values of the peoples of Mesoamerica’ to bring about a ‘rich transfusion of the message into the very blood of a sophisticated culture.’”—Times Literary Supplement

AN EARLY MODERN DIALOGUE
WITH ISLAM
Antonio de Sosa’s Topography of Algiers (1612)
Edited with an Introduction by Maria Antonia Garcés
Translated by Diana de Armas Wilson
“Long overdue, this translation and edition of Sosa’s Topografía is an absolute gem. . . . There is no better source for understanding the human complexity of the early modern Mediterranean world, and both Armas—for the translation—and Garces—the introduction and notes—deserve credit for their masterful achievement.” —Richard L. THE ANDEAN HYBRID BAROQUE
Convergent Cultures in the Churches of Colonial Peru
Gauvin Alexander Bailey
“In a field which has long been populated by ‘anonymous’ or ‘unknown’ masters, Bailey does important work bringing to light the names of indigenous, mestizo, black, criollo, and European craftsmen, artists, and architects, illustrating the complexity of the artistic and political situation during the colonial era.” —Renaissance Quarterly

DEATH AND CONVERSION IN THE ANDES
Lima and Cuzco, 1532–1670
Gabriela Ramos
 “[Ramos’s] interdisciplinary analysis finds that elite burials in consecrated ground contributed to the spread and acceptance of Christianity among urban sectors of the Andean population. . . . She portrays the church and its dictates as both a destructive force (of traditional beliefs and practices) and one that ordered an emerging colonial society.” —The Americas
