Contents

Acknowledgments ix
Preface: Only Evolve! Bioethics and the Need for Narrative xi

Introduction: Learning to Love in a Posthuman World 1

Part I. Posthuman Vision

1. The Moral Imagination in Exile: Flannery O’Connor and Lee Silver at the Circus 27
2. Aylmer’s Moral Infancy: Nathaniel Hawthorne and the Quest for Human Perfection 43

Part II. Posthuman Bodies

3. The Faces of Others: George Saunders, James Tiptree Jr., and the Body for Sale 63
4. The Scorned People of the Earth: Reprogenetics and The Bluest Eye 85

© 2013 University of Notre Dame
Part III. Posthuman Language

5. What Makes a Crake? The Reign of Technique and the Degradation of Language in Margaret Atwood’s Oryx and Crake 109

6. I Love Humanity, but I Don’t Like You: Walker Percy’s The Thanatos Syndrome and the Soul of Scientism 131

Part IV. From Posthuman Individuals to Human Persons

7. Technology, Contingency, and Grace: Raymond Carver’s “A Small, Good Thing” 153

8. The Lure of Transhumanism versus the Balm in Gilead: Marilynne Robinson’s Redemptive Alternative 168

Notes 190

Bibliography 222

Index 233