Contents

List of Illustrations – ix

Author’s Preface – xi

Acknowledgments – xvii

Editor’s Introduction – xix

CHAPTER 1
Still Free: The Phony War – 1

CHAPTER 2
The Real War and the Exodus – 7

CHAPTER 3
Back Home under German Occupation – 15

CHAPTER 4
In Bondage: Forced Labor in the Todt Organization – 19

CHAPTER 5
Deported to Germany – 27

CHAPTER 6
Work at the Möhnetal Dam – 34

CHAPTER 7
Living Conditions at the Dam – 43

CHAPTER 8
Hagen-in-Westfalen and Its Camps – 49

CHAPTER 9
Work at the Telegraphenamt of Hagen – 57

Copyright 2016 University of Notre Dame
CHAPTER 10
Life at the Boeler Heide Camp – 66

CHAPTER 11
Dortmund-South Work Site – 72

CHAPTER 12
Dortmund Hauptbahnof after October 6, 1944 – 77

CHAPTER 13
The Ruhr under the Bombs – 85

CHAPTER 14
On the Ruhr: Hengsteysee and Herdecke – 90

CHAPTER 15
In Railroad Yards Still and Again – 97

CHAPTER 16
My Last Week as a Slave – 107

CHAPTER 17
Peace and Return to Mareuil-sur-Aÿ – 116

Epilogue – 123

Appendix: A Dispute over a Title – 128

Notes – 133

Bibliography – 141
Illustrations

All images are from the translator’s private collection.

Elie in 1936, an apprentice assistant pharmacist – xii

The Mareuil municipal band at La Villa d’Aÿ, a suburb of Epernay, June 10, 1934 – xiii

Elie and his saxophone, 1938 – 4

Elie, pharmacist – 12

Solangé, Elie, and Jeanne in Saint-Honoré-les-Bains, 1940 – 13

Jeanne, Elie, and Jacqueline in Saint-Honoré-les-Bains, 1940–13

Elie in 1942 – 20

Pages from the Jociste Missal Elie stepped on – 87

Elie’s repatriation card – 119

Elie and his wife, Solange, at a Gasthof behind the Möhnetal Dam, June 5, 2002 – 122

Elie in front of the Möhnetal Dam, June 5, 2002 – 122